A Message from Sara

Hello friends

As we reflect on an impactful year at Shine Together, we are filled with gratitude for the progress we've made in supporting young mothers and their families. We are thrilled to announce that we received a $2 million grant from the Yield Giving Open Call. This recognition not only affirms our mission but also empowers us to expand our reach and enhance our programs, allowing us to assist even more young mothers in their journey toward success.

Looking ahead, we are excited to embark on a strategic planning process that will guide our efforts in responding to the evolving needs of our communities. Our focus will be on strengthening our programs across our core regions: Bay Area, Sacramento, and Fresno. This initiative will help us refine our approach to providing critical support for mothers and their children, ensuring they have access to the resources necessary for their growth and well-being.

We are also committed to enhancing our partnerships and leveraging the momentum we've gained over the past year. With the support of our funders and community, we can create a transformative impact in the lives of the families we serve. Together, we are building a brighter future, one filled with hope and opportunities.

Thank you for being an essential part of our journey. Your support is vital as we continue to uplift and empower young lives.

Thank you,
Sara Reyes

OUR 4 PILLARS OF SUCCESS

Educational Navigation

Planning and achieving educational goals

Health & Wellness

Connection to physical, reproductive,
and health resources

Financial Well-Being

Financial literacy and career development

Childhood Development

Building skills and knowledge to support their child

Shine Together believes that education is the key to maximizing each person's potential and making communities strong. Our programs provide young mothers with the support needed to:

- Complete high school and post-secondary education
- Develop the knowledge and skills to nurture their child's positive development
- Enhance their financial literacy
- Improve health and wellness for themselves and their child

We believe that teen pregnancy is both a symptom and a cause of poverty, and it creates significant barriers for young mothers to prosper. Shine empowers young women who become mothers as teens to achieve their full potential in school and as parents, so that two generations thrive.

PROGRAMS AND SERVICES

The young women we work with are strong and determined mothers and students who have often experienced trauma and are overcoming a myriad of barriers in addition to being a teen mother. Young mothers (ages 13-25) participate in our programs through high school completion to enrollment in a postsecondary degree or certificate program that leads to a living wage.

During this time, they receive comprehensive services through one-on-one coaching with an Advocate (staff who work directly with the mothers), peer learning groups, and community workshops. Our Advocates ensure that each young mother is connected to a health clinic and/or doctor, and can access physical, reproductive, and mental health services as needed.

To support the health and wellness of young families, one-on-one coaching sessions also focus on healing trauma young mothers face, life skills development, and creating positive peer connections with other young mothers.

Advocates also work with participants to identify barriers to continuing their education and connect them to services such as counseling, childcare, housing support, and transportation support.

Shine uses Teen Talk, a comprehensive reproductive health curriculum grounded in research and best practice. Other evidence-based practices the program utilizes include Positive Youth Development, Developmental Assets, Girls Circle, Partnering with Teen Parents, and PowerSource Parenting.

CORE COMPONENTS

One-on-one coaching sessions (twice a month, 30 minutes to 1.5 hours):

Sessions focus on healing trauma, life-skills development, future planning, healthy relationships, connection to peers and community, emotional regulation, leadership development, brokering to resources, and developing and practicing appropriate parent-child interactions.

Peer learning groups (twice a month, 2 hours):

Groups focus on parenting, education, self-confidence, relationship building, sexual health education, and healthy relationships. Participants are given unbiased, medically accurate information that allows them to make healthy decisions.

Service navigation (ongoing):

Referrals to community partners and health care professionals ensure members receive equitable access to high quality health care. Advocates accompany members to appointments when requested, and are available to discuss appointments outcomes, answer questions, and help them navigate any concerns.

Also includes parenting education using the PowerSource Parenting curriculum and interactive / developmentally appropriate activities and skill development for mother and child to reduce stress when parenting (including Mommy & Me Kits and children's book distribution).

All of Shine's programs are tailored to meet the unique needs of the young mothers we serve, guiding them through different stages of their educational and personal development.

Teen Success:

Our youngest participants start by gaining stability, finishing their high school education, and exploring the range of opportunities available to them.

Steps to Success:

For young mothers aged 19–25, this program provides the tools and support they need to overcome obstacles and complete their high school diploma or GED.

Bridge to the Future:

Post-secondary education requires determination and resilience—especially for young mothers. Shine equips participants from our Teen Success and Steps to Success programs with the skills and support needed to pursue higher education and thrive.

Highlights from Our Regions

In FY24, our programs have successfully engaged a total of 383 participants, supporting young mothers and their children.

I would tell my high school and college self, 'You did it. You proved everybody wrong,'

Shine Together: Empowering Young Moms, Shaping Two Generations

Bay Area: Karen Arellano's Journey

Karen Arellano's story is one of resilience and perseverance.

The daughter of immigrant farm workers, Karen's journey began in a small rural town. After being accepted to Stanford University while discovering she was pregnant, Karen faced a pivotal moment. Shine Together provided her with the support, guidance, and resources to continue her education and embrace motherhood.

Now, Karen is thriving as a student and mother, determined to pursue a career in education and close the kindergarten readiness gap.

Shine Together has helped Karen and many others navigate the dual challenges of parenting and academic achievement, providing a solid foundation for their future.

A Mother's Triumph: "Perseverance and Determination—It's Never Too Late"

Nohemy Hernandez, 24-year-old mother from Fresno has shown remarkable resilience as she balances motherhood and her pursuit of education.

Through her determination and with support from Shine Together, she overcame obstacles like time management and limited resources to finally earn her high school diploma. Her Advocate provided consistent encouragement, empowering her to persist and reminding her of her potential even during the toughest moments.

Now, with her diploma in hand, she is confidently moving forward with plans to attend Fresno City College, where she aims to become a certified labor and delivery nurse.

Her journey stands as a testament to the power of perseverance, and her message to others reflects her strength: "It's never too late to achieve your goals."

A Story of Resilience

Sacramento Area: April's Journey

At just 16, April is facing the challenges of both motherhood and pursuing her dream of becoming a pediatric nurse.

Despite the struggles and societal stigmas, April's Shine Together Advocate, Ashley, has been a guiding light. Through Shine Together's support, April is not only preparing to welcome her baby, Al'aysia, but also striving to finish high school and lay the foundation for her career in healthcare.

April's story represents the heart of Shine Together's mission—providing young mothers with the resources, mentorship, and confidence they need to pursue their dreams.
